OUR WARRIOR.

FROM EARLY GLEANINGS AND RANDOM RECOLLECTIONS OF THE TOWN OF CORINTH, MAINE, FROM 1792 TO 1882

BY M. S. PALMER.

Among the first settlers of the town, was a man of strong military proclivities—he loved war and its appendages more than all things else. His faculties, energies and genius had concentrated to a single purity and enlisted in military service, and warfare grew into the life and vigor of a passion. Though he loved the shining stars in the firmament, yet he loved more the shooting star, and the open arms of the father of the prodigal son, were sims pleasing to the christian, yet the stacked arms of musketry on the tented field had greater charms for our warrior. With keen relish he read the histories of ancient wars, and while reading the scriptures he dwelt happily on those passages describing the vigor of contending armies, and believing that the Deity instituted war for the aggrandizement of the successful in the fight, our warrior desired a long sword, a nodding plume, and ample room for a Commander on the battlefield.

In military tactics he had become a proficient, and loved the works of Baron Steuben, the more from the fact that this celebrated tactician was once an officer in the army of Frederick the Great, and while in the country received an appointment in the American Army in 1777.

These facts gave a charm to his study, and an impetus to his ambition. In September, 1818, Major-General Jedediah Herrick, of Hampden, issued a division order, calling out the militia to meet on the field north of Mr. John Hancock's house, in Bangor, which order, after designating many military manœuvers, closes by stating, "Col. Hodsdon, as senior officer of the Brigade, will assume the command, and add such evolutions as he may deem expedient" At the time designated the militia, armed and equipped, were in attendance. Officers' plumes waved as thistle blows in fields of nodding grain, while cannon and musketry, by their own mouths, declared their presence. Spectators were innumerable, whose eyes viewed, while His Excellency, the Governor, reviewed the moving military mass, keeping step to the beat of the drum.

Those days of parade were happy days, and the historian who writes the military history of our times will probably canonize each event and pass it down to future generations.

The sabbath following the jubilee week of military parade was pleasant and warm, and at the usual hour the good citizens of Corinth assembled for religious worship. The house was early filled—services had commenced, and while singing Old Hundred, our warrior, on his way home from muster grounds, entered the house of worship in full uniform, and by close packing, a seat was made for him. Singing ended the clergyman announced for his text a passage of scripture found in Eccl. 9: 18—"Wisdom is better than weapons of war but one sinner destroyeth much good."

The sermon was a forcible and interesting showing, first of wisdom—its origin purpose and tendencies, second, the weapons of war, third, the sinner. The discourse exhibited much ability. No person could have listened to this speaker's forcible words, and not have fallen in love with wisdom—without detesting the weapons of war, and becoming fearfully afraid of the sinner.

At the close of the sermon, the speaker, as was the custom of those days, gave liberty for remarks, whereupon our warrior was instantly upon his feet, and with voice more military than devotional, declared the discourse unscriptural, and false in many of its assumed, essential points, that the attack upon war was but a skirmish of words, while his weapons were wooden flints snapped against a sparkless hammer.

Our warrior, though greatly excited, gave evidence of much reading, as well as the character of that reading, was ingenious, witty even, but failed to show that he was competent to control armies, but already illustrating the fact that he could not even control himself.

Historical facts in the Old Testament in which the Almighty is represented as leading in battles, were quoted as evidence that war and slaughter were as much the design and pleasure of the Deity as Christianity, and that such warriors as Alexander the Great, and Napoleon Bonaparte were endowed with greater abilities, than were the Apostles, and that for intelligence and manly bearing the Generals in our army are men far surpassing the preachers of the gospel in our pulpits at the present day.

After the lavish use of much ammunition, with taunts and jests evidently to provoke his opponent, our warrior resumed his seat. Waiting reply, the man of God, (worthy that name), calmly surveying his audience with an eye beaming with peace and Christian tenderness, lifting his hands and looking heavenward, said, "Let us pray."

The audience,—save those, who, with the preacher, knelt—stood during prayer, but our warrior retained his sitting. The good man's prayer was the breathings of the soul in sympathetic intercourse with its Maker, and his words were utterances of faith and trust for the ear of a listening Father; joyous in the belief, that He is the Prince of Peace, and humbly asking that war cease upon the earth, and peace have its home among the children of men the world over, which prayer from the audience received a hearty Amen! The benediction instantly followed the prayer, and the congregation dismissed The first person leaving the house was our warrior, who, quickly throwing himself into his saddle, left for his residence, humbled that his philippic provoked no reply, but in after time the warrior said he found, deeply hidden beneath the mass of clerical rubbish a saving military pearl in the man of peace which was clearly shown by the clergyman in the keeping of a force in reserve and by military strategy outflanking his enemy by silence

THE ART OF SAVAGES

In the Magazine of Art is a paper of interest on "The Art of Savages," in which occur the following remarks

There is one singular fact in the history of savage art which reminds us that savages, like civilized men, have various degrees of culture and various artistic capabilities. The oldest inhabitants of Europe who have left any traces of their thrives and handiwork must have been savages their tools and weapons were not even formed of polished stone, but of rough brown flint. The people who used tools of the sort must necessarily have enjoyed but a scanty mechanical equipment and the life they lived, in caves from which they had to drive the cave bear and among snows where they stalked the reindeer and the mammoth, must have been very rough These earliest known European people, as they are called from the use of their unpolished stone weapons, appear to have inhabited the country now known as France and England before the great Age of Ice. This makes their date one of incalculable antiquity, they are removed from us by a "dark backward and an abyss" of time The whole Age of Ice the dateless period of the polishers of stone weapons, the arrival of men using weapons of bronze, the time which sufficed to change the climate and fauna and flora of Western Europe lies between us and paleolithic man. Yet in him we must recognize a skill more akin to the spirit of modern art than is known in any other known race Paleolithic man like other savages decorated his weapons he did not usually decorate them in the common savage manner, with ornamental patterns He scratched on bits of bone spirited representations of all the animals whose remains are found mixed with his own

To discover how Greek art sprang in a couple of centuries from this course and childish work to the grace of the Egina marbles, and thence to the absolute freedom and perfect, unapproachable beauty of the work of Phidias is one of the most singular problems in the history of art Greece learned something no doubt, from her early insight into the arts which the priests of Assyria and Egypt had cultivated in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Nile. That might account for a swift progress from savage to formal and hieratic art, but whence sprang the inspiration which led her so swiftly on to art which is perfectly free, natural and godlike? It is a mystery of race and of a divine gift The heavenly gods have given it to mortals

MONDAY, JULY 3, 1882.

For Governor:

FREDERICK ROBIE

OF GORHAM.

FOR REPRESENTATIVES TO CONGRESS

THOMAS B. REED, of Portland.
NELSON DINGLEY, Jr., of Lewiston.
CHARLES A. BOUTELLE, of Bangor.
SETH L. MILLIKEN, of Belfast.

BRAG AND FALSEHOOD.

We have a clear majority in the State of at least five thousand, and with prompt, careful, thorough organization there can be no such word as fail. We understand fully the means on which our opponents rely for success. They confess at the start that they are in a minority, and they rely on a large corruption fund, not upon the unbought suffrages of honest citizens, to give them the victory. The less cautious of the managers boast that they will have fifty thousand dollars, in addition to all the assessments upon officers within the State to accomplish the infamy of overthrowing the will of the majority of voters in Maine.—Portland Argus.

The fact that the foregoing statements appeared in the editorial columns of the Argus is ample advertisement of their falsehood and renders contradiction unnecessary. Every man of sense knows that there is no more truth in the claim of five thousand or any Fusion majority in this State, than there is in the other brazen assertion that any Republican "managers" have made such a boast. The Argus has evidently felt that its most desperate mendacity is needed to counteract the effect of Gen Anderson's letter of declination in which he gives as a principal reason for his refusal to be a candidate, the complaint that the Democratic Congressional Committee have failed to give assurance of abundant financial aid.

For the organ of a party that notoriously used in this State in 1880 five times as much money as was ever before employed by any political party in Maine, the furious accusations of the Argus are very amusing while at the same time plainly indicative of the ill temper that arises from anticipated defeat.

THAT LEWISTON PLATFORM

The Kennebec Journal, speaking of the Democratic platform adopted at the Lewiston Convention, remarks:

"First, this party that undertook to steal the State government outright and practices and approves fraud, bribery and assassination in all the Southern States of the Union, declares its profound disgust at the purchase of votes in elections. The Democracy have a way of carrying elections that suits them better—by the tissue ballots and false counting.

"Second, the Democratic party declares in favor of civil service reform. Having originated and followed the spoils system down to the latest day they had control of any offices, their conversion to civil service reform when out of power is a sort of death bed repentance that plain people of fair understanding take no stock in.

"Third, the tariff and revenue taxation which exist just as they were left by a Democratic Congress, and all efforts to amend which by a competent commission have been opposed by the Democracy, are denounced in a thrilling manner.

"Fourth, commerce and shipbuilding receive marked attention, but there is not a word in the resolutions about the piratical policy of the British government, which drove our commerce and vessels from the ocean during the Democratic rebellion, and for which our people are getting some recompense in the distribution of the Geneva award, effected by the present Republican Congress—nor yet anything about free trade in ships, that Democratic policy which would close every shipyard in the State and make us dependent on foreign countries for vessels."

THE FUSION SLATE

[From the Belfast Journal.]

Probably those of the Greenbackers who did not have their eyes opened when their State Convention was held in Bangor, will now see through the scheme of the Plaisted ring. The Congressional slate was made up then, but the ring did not dare to attempt to foist their Democratic candidates upon a Greenback convention and so relegated the nominations to district conventions, as more easy to manipulate, and which in the case of the third and fourth districts, have been successfully manipulated. The Convention called to nominate Ladd met at Bangor, and that to nominate Murch in Rockland, this being part of the scheme to shut out other candidates who might offer themselves in defiance of the ring.

A POLITICAL SCARECROW

[From the Boston Herald.]

The Fusion party (in Maine) is composed of two elements, which have only one bond of sympathy—a desire "to get in." It has two bodies, with full equipments of legs, wings and tails but, for present convenience, only a single head. The genial and not unintelligent countenance of Gov Plaisted surmounts the strange and heterogenous combination, with a fixed, non-committal expression, like that of a mask, while the two component parts of the body seem to be going it each on its own hook. That the figure is justified by the facts observe this evidence. The Greenbackers who nominated Plaisted resolved that our government "has been perverted into a government of money power, by money power, and for money power," and still it demanded a currency to be controlled by this government in its most debased and demoralized condition. On the other hand, the Democratic Convention which nominated Plaisted resolved that Congress is bound to establish a currency "always convertible into and equal in value to specie," and "to protect the community against the evils of a debased coin and the greater evil of an excessive issue of paper money." Both parties are prudently reticent, but it is undeniable that they stand far apart on the currency question, and are only united on Plaisted and opposition to the Republicans. If the Greenbackers have a leg to stand upon—as Greenbackers and not as a scarecrow—they believe government should issue paper currency declared to be money for all purposes (fiat money) as long as anybody asks for more, and never redeem it in anything more tangible or more valuable. If the Democrats have a single leg to stand upon—and not a stick vainly disguised by frayed, cast-off trousers—they believe in none; money, a currency at all times convertible into real value. We may not be astonished to see such a peculiar double-bodied image—which reminds us of the negro minstrel Siamese twins (Pat and Cuffy); we may not wonder at the single placid head of the queer combination, serenely unconscious of the humor of the situation; but we cannot avoid some silent speculation as to the effect on the crows and the length of time the "contrapshun" will stand the weather.

THE PROSECUTION OF GEN. CURTIS.

Argument was heard Thursday in the United States Circuit Court, New York, before Judges Wallace, Brown and Benedict, on a motion in arrest of judgment and for a new trial upon exceptions taken in the case of the United States vs. General Newton Martin Curtis. The defendant had been found guilty in a trial before Judge Benedict, of violating the Revised Statutes in receiving contributions from government employes for political purposes, he at the time being a government employe and Treasurer of the New York Republican State Committee.

Edwin B Smith, Esq., formerly of Saco counsel for Gen. Curtis, spoke in support of the motion. In the course of his speech he first considered what he regarded as the paramount question—namely, the constitutionality of the statute. He said that the statute under which this indictment was found was not for the prevention of political assessments it was a law against voluntary contributions for political purposes solely, it forbade subordinates to unite for the promotion of objects which they approved, but did not prevent their superiors from using coercion to compel contributions for purposes which contributors might entirely disapprove. In the Constitution there was no clause upon which such a law could rest, and Congress was delegated with limited legislative powers and could do nothing which the Constitution did not first sanction. The proposition that any act whatever of one in the civil employ of the United States might be made criminal, and the whole course of his life be regulated by Congress merely as an incident to the fact of employment, seemed hardly worthy of serious refutation. Yet careful examination of the statute and the treatment it had received from others indicated no other ground to be taken in its support. The defendant was not charged with receiving the money in the course of or in violation of his official duty. The indictment correctly stated the reverse to be true. He received it as a member of the Republican State Committee (of which he was treasurer), for the use of that committee in the then pending campaign. It was because the transaction had no relation to official duty that it was something with which the federal government had nothing to do.

Jurisdiction could not be assumed because the act prohibited might have some possible effect upon a person's capacity to discharge official duty. If it could it would authorize the passage of sumptuary laws dictating what an officer or employe might or might not eat, drink and wear, and it would confer the power to regulate the marriage and divorce of such persons. The plain and only import of the statute was to forbid pecuniary co-operation among the federal officers and employees, numbering nearly one hundred thousand citizens, for any political purpose whatever, national, State or municipal. The statute was an unwarrantable assumption of power, not only because it undertook to dictate to citizens of New York as to a transaction affecting only themselves within its borders, but still more because this dictation was as to a matter that vitally affected New York as a body politic. It was in violation of natural right. It was a most severe blow to free discussion, for it said to 100,000 citizens that they should not give at their own good pleasure. That deadly stroke was given in the name of political liberty and under the banner of reform. Mr. Smith concluded by submitting a brief containing an argument on the various exceptions taken at the trial.

Assistant District Attorney Fiero said that instead of an oral argument he would submit to the Court a printed brief, which would be ready on Friday.

THAT FALSE PRETENSE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29, '82

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier

A report has had a wide circulation throughout Maine that the Representative of the Fourth District, G. W. Ladd, was the chief mover in promoting the passage of the Geneva Award bill in the House, and that he had great influence with the committee, and also that he made a most "convincing" speech on the floor of the House. Allow me to state that Mr. Ladd never made any argument before the committee or any individual member of it, and he never influenced one vote in its behalf in any way, and, moreover, he was not on the floor during the discussion of the bill, and he did not even vote on its final passage, for he is put down in the Journal of the House as "Absent." NEMO.

The Lewiston Journal is strangely in error in classing Rev. George M. Park, of Presque Isle, as a member of the "opposition." That gentleman is not only one of the soundest Republicans, but he is also one of the most earnest and influential friends of temperance.

The Scene at the Assassin's Burial.

WHAT THE DOCTOR'S SAY ABOUT THE AUTOPSY.

The Brain Pronounced Healthy.

WASHINGTON, July 1. The body of Guiteau was buried this afternoon in the north-east corridor of the jail and, so far as is now known to the contrary, the remains will be there undisturbed by any future sepulture. Under the law the disposition of the bodies of criminals who are executed rests with the discretion of the warden.

In the case of Guiteau, his sister, Mrs. Scoville, was without means and could not have undertaken his burial expenses, even if permitted to do so. The only other relative who has appeared on the scene is his brother, John W. Guiteau, and he was unwilling to assume the risk of taking charge of the remains, believing that he would be powerless to prevent "body snatchers" from stealing them. Therefore Mr. Crocker resolved to bury the assassin's body within the walls of the jail, where it would be beyond the reach alike of vengeance or speculation. The northeast corridor, in which Guiteau was buried, is upon the opposite side of the rotunda from the one in which he was hung and from the window of the cell in which he was confined one can look down upon the grave.

The brick flooring was removed this morning and a grave seven feet deep was dug. At four o'clock this afternoon the coffin containing the body of Chas. J. Guiteau was borne from the chapel upon the shoulders of six of the jail prisoners and without any service or ceremony whatever was lowered into the grave and buried from sight. The only persons present were John W. Guiteau, Dr. Hicks, Warden Crocker and son, Mr. Wright, the undertaker, Ward, the engineer of the jail, Deputy Warden Russ, Capt. Crocker and the six prisoners who acted as pall bearers. The coffin was closed last evening and no one has since been permitted to see the remains. Mrs. Scoville, accompanied by her chevalier, arrived at the jail shortly before four o'clock and importuned the warden to be allowed to see the remains and witness their burial. Mr. Crocker, however, remained firm in his determination not to accede to her request and after a few minutes she returned to the city, leaving a number of flowers which she had brought with her and which she expected to place upon the grave

As the body was being taken down the steps leading from the chapel to the centre of the rotunda of the building the mourners, or rather witnesses, stood near the door leading to the northeast rotunda and as it was taken down the flight of steps leading from the rotunda to the brick floor of the corridor they silently filed in behind the convict pall bearers. Arrived at the grave the little procession halted. Warden Crocker looked enquiringly, first toward Dr. Hicks and then to John W. Guiteau. "All right," said the latter, with the same imperturbable composure that he has exhibited the past three days, and the coffin was at once lowered to its place. After the earth had been replaced and the top of the grave levelled off, John W. Guiteau stepped forward and placed at its head a crown of white immortelles. Not a word was spoken, not a tear was shed. An outcast from human sympathy when living, Guiteau had found an unwept sepulture in an unmarked grave.

What the Doctors Say.

Dr. Lamb was asked to-day if it was true that Guiteau's brain was found in a normal condition and replied: "That is true as far as the brain is concerned, but the membrane that enveloped it was found to be unhealthy and will be examined closely." "Was the condition of the brain a surprise to you?" "No; it could not have been very well, as I had no expectation in regard to it. I simply examined the brain with the desire to find as much as possible of its condition." Doctors Lamb and Towers think that it will be several days before the report is completed. Dr. Hartigan is of the opinion that it will be ready sooner. Dr. Hartigan said that the membrane around the brain were apt to cause a doubt in the minds of those who were disposed to believe the insanity theory, but that he had often seen the same condition of the membrane in persons never suspected of insanity.

Dr. McDonald, whose expert testimony during the Guiteau trial formed one of the features, attended the autopsy yesterday and was to-day asked if it was true that the brain was found in a healthy condition. "Yes," was the reply; "that was the case. It could hardly have been in a better condition. In weight it was only a half ounce below the normal and its appearance was natural and healthy." Was not this an unexpected result?" "Not to me at least. It was no more than I expected, so far as the brain shows mental condition."

I have seen no reason to change my opinion about the late deceased. "But does the brain indicate the mental condition," "To a certain extent, yes, and as the work with the microscope becomes more accurate it will show it more fully. A diseased brain is regarded as an indication of insanity although sane people have been known to have diseased brains." "But it is said that the membrane was diseased." "It was not healthy and its condition might or might not indicate disease The microscopic examination will show that, and will determine exactly what it does indicate.

"Will there be anything further developed in the examination of the brain to change your opinion."

"I don't see how there can be. The examination will be continued and will be as thorough as possible and will give minute particulars, but the general conclusions arrived at will not be changed. In my opinion the brain was a good one."

FOREIGN NEWS.

Japan and China.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1. A delayed letter from Yokohama, of June 13th, says U. S. Minister Young arrived there June 12th, and will proceed to China in a week.

U. S. ship Alert, injured by a collision with the Imperial Japanese yacht, has been fully repaired in the Government dockyard.

The Japanese Charge d' Affaires in France named Suzuki, has been dismissed from the civil service for fraudulent misuse of funds.

Hong Kong dates of June 5th state that advices from Tonquin show that the French attempt to invade the Annam has been discountenanced by the Government of France. The citidal Hanvi has been restored to the Annamite officials, and a large part of the treasure refunded. The Annamite embassy is now proceeding overland to Pekin to lay complaints and to demand interference on the part of the Pekin Government.

Hungary.

PESTH, July 1. Fresh attacks upon Jews in Hungary are reported. The Government will send reinforcements of troops to upper Hungary for their protection.

Egypt.

LONDON, July 1. The Press Bureau says the French Foreign Office has informed the ministerial Press that the policy of France in Egypt has been attended with satisfactory results.

BERLIN, July 1. Prince Bismarck expects no satisfactory results from the conference, but he is on the side of England, so far as the Suez Canal is concerned.

LONDON, July 1. The Times in its financial article says it is informed on good authority that Lord Dufferin, the British Ambassador at Constantinople, has telegraphed to the Foreign Office that the Porte has signified its intention to be guided by the views of the conference respecting Egypt, and that Turkish troops will be sent to re-establish the status quo under the direction of the Powers. The Times says it is also informed that Egyptians of good position have petitioned the Sultan and the Powers through Dervisch Pacha to restore the status quo, as the country is becoming utterly disorganized. This information, though known in some quarters, has failed to arrest the downward course of Egyptian securities because of the announcement of a large failure in Paris necessitating some forced closing of accounts.

The Repression Bill.

[illegible]

Sir Wm. Harcourt Denounces the Obstructionists.

PARNELL AND FIFTEEN OTHER MEMBERS LEAVE THE HOUSE.

LONDON, July 1. The House of Commons in committee continued in session throughout the night on clause 17 of the Repression bill. At 7:30 o'clock this morning Sir Wm. Harcourt, Home Secretary, said that time equivalent to two working days had been consumed in the discussion of a clause of secondary importance. It would be for the House and the country to say whether means might not be adopted to end this state of things

Mr. Parnell said the home rule members would appeal to their countrymen at home and abroad. He contended that no opposition could be more reasonably conducted against such an atrocious measure.

At 9:30 o'clock Dr. Lyon Playfair, chairman of the committee, said there had been deliberately-planned obstruction to the business of the House. Messrs. Biggar, Callan, Commins, Dillon, Healy, Leamy, McCarthy, Marum, Metge, T. P. O'Connor, O'Donnell, Parnell, Power, Redmond, Sexton and Sullivan were then suspended and quitted the House.

At 10:35 o'clock the chairman reported that Mr. O'Donnell had said that the statement of the chairman was infamous.

Rt. Hon. Hugh C. Childers, Secretary for War, gave notice that he would move to consider Mr. O'Donnell's conduct on Monday and it was agreed to take up the matter on that day.

During the night Mr. Dillon defied the government to levy a blood tax from poor tenants without provoking a renewal of the disorders which attended the tithe war.

This is a sample of the discussion throughout the night.

Mr. O'Donnell declared that Dr. Playfair's naming him was infamous, because he had been absent from the House all night and was therefore foully named. The chairman had sinned against all the traditions of his office.

Mr. Childers moved the suspension of the members named, and their suspension was voted by 126 to 27, amid loud cheers from all parts of the House, including the Irish members.

Mr. Callan said the chairman in declaring him guilty of obstruction had stated an utter falsehood.

A motion that the named members withdraw was carried.

The Speaker proceeded to call on them individually to withdraw.

Mr. Mealy suggested that they all withdraw together, which they did.

Mr. Callan paused to shout "I am suspended on the false report of a salaried government officer."

A motion to report progress was rejected by a vote of 159 to 16.

Clause 17 was then adopted by a vote of 158 to 19.

Clause 18, which declares that a person guilty of an offence against the act shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment with or without hard labor for a term not exceeding six months, was then taken up.

Mr. McCoan, Home Rule member from Wicklow, moved an amendment reducing the penalty to three months' imprisonment.

Mr. Gladstone intimated that it might be necessary to ask urgency, and that notice therefor would be given this forenoon.

The House at this hour—2:30 P. M.—is still in session and is likely to sit until midnight. A fresh relay of members arrived this morning.

Mr. Joseph Cowen gave notice that he would ask on Monday whether the suspensions or the Irish members were regular.

Clause 18 was adopted by a vote of 186 to 20.

The government had previously consented to limit the penalty for attending proclaimed meetings and for night prowling to three months in prison, but they opposed amendments for a reduction in regard to other offences mentioned in the clause, and those amendments were rejected.

A SLIGHT SCARE. Portland has been enjoying a slight small pox scare. Last week a sailor on the revenue cutter Dallas was taken down with varioloid. He was removed to the hospital and the cutter quarantined. Friday morning it was reported that there were eight additional cases on board. Miss Burr had for several years been an efficient and favorite teacher in our Grammar School, and numerous beautiful gifts attested the high esteem in which she is held. Mr. Aiken is a young man of excellent character, at present employed in the jewelry establishment of F. H. Lowell, on Main street. We extend our best wishes.

STORM INSURANCE. The subject of storm insurance is brought up about once a year, when the tornadoes have made their annual visitations in April, May and June, and just now it is especially talked of in connection with the cyclone that swept over central Iowa a week ago. There is no very obvious reason why damages from storms on land may not be insured against as well as those which come from storms upon the water. It is the same force of wind that wrecks a vessel and unroofs a house, and the waterspout is evidence that the cyclone travels on the ocean as well as the prairie. The ordinary fire policy only covers loss that actually comes by fire. If a house is blown down and then burned, the insurance company pays no more than the house was worth after it was blown down and before the fire took it. Some companies issue policies which cover damage by lightning, even when there is no fire, and the next step will be to insure against damage from wind, hail and rain.

U. S. WAR STEAMER YANTIC.

Her Arrival off Hampden Yesterday.

SHE WILL STEAM UP TO BANGOR TO-DAY.

The United States War Steamer Yantic arrived off Hampden yesterday from New York, and in the afternoon Commander Woodward with Executive Officer Gibson, came to this city in the steam launch to obtain the steamer's mails and consult with persons here in regard to the facilities for mooring in our harbor.

After conference with Capt. Hugh Ross, the veteran steamboat manager, it was decided to bring the Yantic up to the city at high water this forenoon and anchor her just below the toll-bridge so as to moor her by the stern from the abutment. The river is quite clear of vessels in that vicinity now, and it not only affords ample water, but also furnishes a fine opportunity to show the vessel to spectators on the bridge and on either shore.

On the Fourth of July the Yantic will be dressed gaily with flags and at an hour which will be designated in to-morrow morning's paper a salute will be fired in honor of Independence Day. Commander Woodward has also kindly consented to land a battalion of "blue jackets" to take part in the procession under command of Lieut. Gibson; and the other officers of the ship will ride in carriages with the committee charged with their entertainment, of which ex-Mayor A. C. Hamlin is chairman.

The Yantic is a fine war steamer of nearly 1,000 tons and the opportunity of seeing and inspecting a regular man-of-war will be greatly enjoyed by many who have never seen a naval vessel before. She carries as her armament one 8-inch rifled pivot gun; one 6-inch rifled pivot gun; two 9-inch smooth-bore shell guns; one 3-inch rifle and one 12 pounder boat howitzer. Her complement is one hundred and thirty-two men and her list of nineteen officers is as follows:

Commander, E. F. Woodward.
Lieutenant and Ex. Officer, W. C. Gibson.
" " Naval Officer, E. S. Prime.
Masters, F. E. Greene.
" C. J. Badger.

Our people will extend a hearty welcome to the gallant craft that bears the flag and the commission of our National Government, and her presence in our harbor cannot fail to add much to the interest of the observances in celebration of the Glorious Fourth.

Children's Sunday at the Central Church.

The day was appropriately observed at Central Church. The floral decorations were beautiful, the flowers being very artistically arranged. The decorations consisted of a crescent on front of pulpit, made of pink peonies. On the right of the pulpit a beautiful star, made of buttercups. On the left of the pulpit was a wreath of white and bright colored flowers. The gas pendants were tastefully trimmed with evergreen ferns, and white flowers. On the wall in the rear of the pulpit was a motto in evergreen and field daisies, "God is Love."

The pastor, Rev. G. W. Field, preached an appropriate sermon in the morning, subject; "Home." In the evening a Floral Concert was held by the Sunday school.

The following interesting programme was presented:

Singing, selection by the Choir; reading Scripture responsively; children procession, marching in and singing as they marched, making showers of flowers after reaching the rostrum; prayer by Pastor; singing by School; report of Secretary; recitation, "Welcome to Spring," by Emma Coffin; Report by Superintendent; recitation, "Flowers," by Mamie Stanford; response by Secretary; recitation, "Daisies," by Gracie Chapman and Nannie Goodenow; response by Miss Rollins; singing by school; recitation and singing, "God is Love," by David Stanford, Marion Parker, Willie Goodwin, Edith Drummond, Clark Maybury, Louie Buck, Harry Haynes, and Daisy Pendleton; exercise by class; response by Miss Porter; recitation "Unseen Flowers," by Alice Pearl; singing by school; recitation "The Lillies," by Fannie Wilson; reading "God Loves Us," by class; recitation "The Beautiful." by Marcia Kimball; remarks by the Pastor; singing by school "Evening Prayer."

These figures are fired from improved wooden cannons, and are the most novel features of all July celebrations. These will consume about an hour's time.

After dark, as soon as possible, to give good effects, the evening display will begin by a discharge of rockets, shells, mines, parachute shells, etc., which will occupy the time until the first piece, which will be an

A pyramid of Catherine wheels, each wheel bearing different colors, crimson, green, blue, yellow, etc., forming a beautiful combination mutating to brilliants that end the piece by forming an immense fountain.

"KALEIDOSCOPE."

This piece is composed of two triangles, one of yellow and the other of blue lance, revolving in opposite directions. This lance-work burns while revolving different colors, and by revolving in opposite direction produces all the beautiful colors, forms and shapes seen by looking through a kaleidoscope. This is one of the most beautifully colored pieces known to the art.

"THUNDER WHEEL."

A frame with six arms; on the end of each arm is a large Catherine wheel carrying all colors capable of being used in pyrotechny. The centre is a shield of Iris, at the end of each arm are arranged suns connected with the wheels and finish the piece by forming an immense six-pointed star, the wheels revolving and showing all colors during the burning.

"CHANDELIER."

A large piece formed in the manner of a chandelier. A base of revolving fire running into curved arms of blue lance work, suspended by curved chains of gold fire. At the ends of these arms are arranged candles in the form of globes which discharge brilliant fire and terminate the piece by heavy explosions.

"JULY COLUMN."

This is composed of a column standing about eight feet high after being placed about ten feet from ground. Encircling this will be a wreath of laurel, surmounted by the American Eagle and extending on each side, flags of our Union. On the base will be the word "Bangor" in crimson, on one side, date of incorporation, the other, 1882, in gold lance. Extending from the sides are heavy batteries of candles, and fired during the burning of this piece, the whole being made more brilliant by shells, mines, etc.

The foregoing pieces will be made large and accurate, and will thus be made so that the whole people assembled will be enabled to see them.

During the firing of the foregoing pieces will be fired, shells, combination shells, rockets, parachute shells and parachute rockets, candle batteries, mines, volleys of meteoric shells, chain shells and a great variety of Anglo-Japanese goods included in the above numeration. Some kinds are entirely new and novel. As per the attended memorandum which shows the number of each used during the exhibit.

Children's Sunday at the Universalist Church.

At the Universalist church Sunday was observed as Children's Day, and in spite of the rain quite a number of the little ones were among the congregation. The church was handsomely decorated. Festoons of evergreen were hung around the whole audience room and swung in long and graceful curves from the ceiling over the pulpit.

The altar and platform were almost embowered by the sweetest and most lovely flowers, among them floral crosses, anchors, crowns, etc., together with baskets of violets. The large organ at the opposite end of the auditorium was also beautifully decorated. The pastor preached a children's sermon from Rev. II-17,—and likened the white stone with a new name in it, there spoken of, to a roll of honor upon which he urged the children that their names should be written. In conclusion he alluded to the deaths, since the last Children's Sunday, of four members of the Sabbath School, Lottie White, Fred Everett Glass, George Murray and recently Harry Bickford.

Then followed the beautiful and impressive service of dedication by baptism of the following children: Frank Howard Moor, Orlando Merrill Moor, Mary Elizabeth Chalmers, Carrie Ellen Leonard, Gracie Ruth Chalmers, Arthur Sumner Chalmers.

In the evening there was an excellent Sabbath School concert with the following programme: Organ voluntary; anthem by choir; responsive service; prayer by pastor; recitation by Maddie Adams; recitation by Maggie Ham; recitation by Misses Wiggin and Pierce; recitation by Misses Patten, Warren and Lord; song by Misses Chalmers, Pierce and Leonard; reading by Misses Graves and Staples; song by school; reading by Maud Young; recitation by Maddie Adams; song by school; reading by Miss Getchell; song by Annie Stubbs; reading by Miss Annie Ray; reading by Miss Katie Perkins; trio by Miss Henry and Messrs. HAY FEVER.

Mr. A. L. AVERY, Pharmacist Newark, N. J —Having been severely afflicted for eleven years with Hay Fever after trying almost everything without avail I gave up all hopes of being cured, when I purchased of you a box of Ely's Cream Balm To my surprise, after a few applications, I was entirely relieved. R. WATSON HARRIS, Letter Carrier No. 14, New P. O., Newark, N. J.

I HAVE BEEN a Hay Fever sufferer for three years, and have often heard Ely's Cream Balm spoken of in the highest terms, but did not take much stock in it because of the many quack medicines. A friend persuaded me to try the Balm, and with wonderful success. The recommendation you can use for the benefit of Hay Fever sufferers. T. S. GEER, Syracuse, N. Y. Price 50 cents.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

A SURE CURE FOUND AT LAST! NO ONE NEED SUFFER!

A sure Cure for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. William, (an Indian remedy) called Dr. William's Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 or 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electuaries do more harm than good. William's Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and for nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry of Cleveland, says about Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment: I have used scores of Pile Cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. William's Indian Ointment.

Cumberland.

Mr. S. K. Hitchings has resigned his position as principal of Greely Institute at Cumberland, to take charge of the scientific department of the Biddeford high school.

A fire caught Thursday night in the intelligence office over Schryver's clothing store on Congress street, Portland, and burned completely down through the floor.

Several days ago, three boys were playing on Anderson street, with one of those toy pistols, in which blank cartridges are used. One of the boys suggested loading the barrel with pebbles, and it was done. Then a McDonald boy, about ten years of age, whose father works for the Portland Company, took the pistol, and while holding it in his hand to cock it, discharged it, the charge lodging in his left hand, and making an ugly wound. A physician dressed the wound, and it was apparently doing nicely; but on Sunday, symptoms of lockjaw set in, and since that time the boy has had attacks more or less severe. Yesterday it was reported that the boy was dying with that dreaded complaint.—Press.

In addition to the concert which Miss Annie Louise Cary has just given in aid of the Maine General Hospital, she has sent a check for $250 to establish an annual free bed. Miss Cary has been a firm friend to the hospital ever since its organization and has on several previous occasions given concerts in its behalf, besides donations of money. This check was given by her with the request that no public notice should be made of it; and, only after being assured that such notice would induce others to give, did she consent to have it made public. The friends of the hospital, as well as the poor whom she has aided, will ever hold her in grateful remembrance.

The Augusta Journal says, David Masterman, in the north part of Weld, has commenced the cultivation of trout. At the foot of a mountain in Weld, Mr. Masterman has built a dam across a limpid stream and made a pond of about four acres, into which he put nearly 1000 trout, speckled beauties, most of which will weigh a pound apiece. We had the pleasure of dropping them a line, in response to which we brought away a string that was the envy of all who saw it. Mr. Masterman owns the land all round the pond, and has full control of all the fish in it. He intends to make other ponds, build a hatching house, increase his stock, and for a consideration, allow sportsmen the privilege of fishing there

The Ellsworth American says, during the thunder storm, of last week, lightning struck on the main road, near Walker's Pond, in Knoxsville, splitting a large fir tree in ten thousand slivers, using its roots as conductors, and tearing up nearly half an acre of land in a fearful manner. Ditches two feet deep were dug, and large boulders moved and split. Many persons have been to the spot and all pronounced it wonderful.

SALE [illegible]

Mr. OSCAR CRAIG Blown up by a Premature Blast in the Rosendale Cement Quarry--Destruction of an Eye--Its Subsequent Removal by Surgical Operation.

Mr Oscar Craig was foreman in a cement quarry at Rosendale, Ulster Co., N Y. By an explosion one day in the quarry he lost an eye—but is totally Under the impression that the matter was less serious, the local physician told Mr Craig that his eye was not lost wholly, but could be saved by treatment The experiment was tried and failed Worse remained behind, for he was in danger of losing the other also through sympathetic inflammation. In this strait he consulted Dr DAVID KENNEDY, of Rondout, N Y., who told him the injured eye must be taken out to save the other. To this Mr Craig demurred, and went back home in doubt. His local physician said "Go to New York" To New York the patient went, and one of the most eminent oculists in the country, having looked at the case, said "You have lost one eye entirely, no back and do what you can to save the other." Briefly, Dr Kennedy removed the ruined eye and treated Mr Craig with "KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY" to build up the system, and the result was successful

Dr Kennedy's great success as a Surgeon is due to the use of "Favorite Remedy" in the after treatment
